

BLACK HAND BOMB RECKS SHOP AND CAUSES A PANIC

Plants in Six-Story Tenement Stamped to Fire
Escapes by Explosion.

NY RACE TO ROOF.

Door to Building in Which 23 Perished in Incendiary Fire.

Two Black Handers in Sing Sing long terms, and two other alleged bombers in the Tombs awaiting trial having bombs in their possession, organization again defied Commissioner Waldo's detectives today by setting off a bomb in the hallway of No. 123 Chrystie street, a six-story tenement house occupied by more than 100 persons.

A wild panic followed the explosion of the bomb shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. The bomb had been placed against the rear door of Salvatore Mattellone's pastry shop on the north side of the building. The usual fusillade of revolver shots was fired, and men, women and children swarmed down the stairways, the front and rear fire-escapes, while others fled to the roof. Policeman Gram, at the intersection of Houston street, less than sixty feet away, saw no suspicious persons entering or leaving the tenement house before the explosion. He had his hands full for several minutes quelling the frantic tenants.
The explosion played some queer tricks. It blew down the rear door of the pastry shop and the door leading into the back yard from the hallway; all of the store fixtures in the pastry shop were uninjured, except a showcase in front, which was ground into splinters, and the plate-glass front was blown out. It left uncached the rear door leading into Henry Kell's jewelry shop across the hall from the pastry shop, but it lifted ten-year-old Josie Pampinello, who lives above the pastry shop, out of bed and threw her on the floor, and sent all the pictures in the room clattering to the floor.
FRIGHTENED DOG ENCASED HIMSELF IN DOUGH.
In the rear of the pastry shop, chained to a table on which Mattellone mixes his pastry, was the baker's bulldog, who answers to the name of "Jake." When the bomb went off Jake jumped forward, barking, and over-turned the table, dumping flour, water, eggs and sugar all over himself until he was encased in a shell of raw pastry. His barking, heard above the shrieks of the panic-stricken tenants, added to their fright, and it was not until the baker arrived from his home at No. 102 East Houston street that Jake could be pacified.

Mattellone, who has been baking at No. 123 Chrystie street for the last seven years, vowed to the detectives that he had never had any trouble with any one, and that he had received none of the usual blackmailing letters. The detectives were inclined to believe this statement, and to assume that the explosion was intended to be preliminary to a systematic blackmailing of the frugal baker, whose reputed wealth had finally marked him as a fitting subject for the attentions of the "Mano Nero."
This morning's explosion was the first on this block since one at No. 223, next door, three years ago, which resulted in a fire in which twenty-three people lost their lives. It is the fourth explosion since the arrest of Giuseppe Costabile, alleged chief of the bomb makers, on Sept. 5, and Giovanni Rizzo ten days later. Both of them were caught with bombs in their possession.
Costabile had his under his coat, and Rizzo was placing his in a doorway, when the Italian squad pounced upon them. Awaiting trial in the Tombs are Dominick Santilino, who was arrested for placing a bomb in Domenick Martuccio's coal and wood cellar, at No. 319 East Fifty-eighth street, and Angelo Cuchira, who was nabbed at Twenty-ninth street and Second avenue on Oct. 3 with a bomb in his possession.

A Sale of Hackett, Carhart Men's Overcoats That Will Make Clothing History

Over 6,000 Winter overcoats to choose from, each at a saving of $6.50 to $17.50. Now you ask why such values are possible at the very beginning of the season. Now we tell you why.
This sale was carefully planned months ago and certain favorable conditions taken advantage of. Two mills, famous for their overcoatings, lost confidence in their styles designed for this season, and were anxious to dispose of thousands of yards of goods, which we bought at a big reduction.
Time has shown that THE STYLES WERE RIGHT and that the mills erred in sacrificing their production.
But the benefit is yours, because you get fabrics in these coats that usually go into garments at much higher prices.

The tailoring is in keeping with the fabrics and is the high Hackett-Carhart standard unsurpassed for over 50 years.
The models are an exposition of all this season's newest correct designs, the new Raglans, the new convertible collar coats, both single and double breasted, with or without belts, and the new box models.
The fabrics present an assortment of every known weave and coloring and furs that are correctly used for overcoats. Besides the goods from the two mills referred to, there are fabrics from fifteen of the best mills in Europe and America, and furs from all the world.
The values are truly stated in this announcement, and are the best overcoat values ever offered at the beginning of the season.

KESNER'S

A STORE FOR ALL THE PEOPLE

Our buyers and merchandising managers most certainly have caught the spirit of enthusiasm, and the great rush of each day's business seems to add fuel to the flame of response to our demand of them for values.

Items exemplifying careful and clever purchases are pouring into the advertising office with the result that we find it difficult to choose when it comes to giving preference for real merit. Remember that every item which appeared in our great twelve-page advertisement last Sunday is still on sale, and equally good values are continually being added to them.

Millinery Showing of Exceptional Interest Beauty Sharing the Honors With Values

Our very comprehensive collection of seasonable millinery is proving to be the centre of attraction to scores of discriminating women.
